FORT STREET, bet. Douglas & Broad Streets.

The Daily Standard. Phursday, September 5, 1872. Court of Appeal. Enough has been written on this subject in British Columbia to fill a book. The want of a Court of Appeal is felt to he a real substantial grievance, and has heen ever since Courts were established in the colony. However honest, honorable, or astute a lawyer a Judge may be, it is dangerous to the public welfare that he should be the sole arbiter in cases where the lives and property of citizens are involved. That has been the condition of affairs in this country until within a very short period, nor is it very much better now: We now have two Supreme Coart Judges where formerly we had but one, and so far the Government has taken a step in the right direction. should be very sorry indeed to cast even a shadow of doubt upon the integrity of either of our Judges, but we are also very far from beliving in the infallibility of their judgments Several instances might be adduced tending to prove the reverse to be true. Besides, the investment of any one individual, or even two individuals, with absolute authority to determine matters of law, and by their ipse dizit practically make a statute mean the very reverse of what it says, tends to the subversion of justice not unfrequently, and if a person possessing such powers is at all disposed to play the CAPTAIN. tyrant, there is nothing to prevent him Will sail from Victoria for Olympia and way portal twice doing so. A case decided in the Supreme Court some few weeks ago affords a very striking illustration of how necessry a Court of Appeal is in this Province. composed of at least three Judges. It was an action to recover the sum of $81 50, alleged by the plaintiff to be case was originally entered for trial at County Court, Victoria. At the last moment this action was withdrawn and another for $160 37 commenced. It is unnecessary to go into particulars Salesroom St. Niebolas Building, Governof the evidence given on each side; but after a long and partial hearing, Mr. Pemberton gave judgment for the de-feudant, deciding that nothing was due. Against this decision the plaintiff at preme Court, under the "County Courts Wednesday, September 11, Amendment Ordinance, 1870," which provides for the rehearing of the whole ase as if it had been originally brought in the Supreme Court. Nothing further was done until the latter part of June, to the defendant's Attorney saying that when the plaint if a Attorney sent a note intended to try the appeal at the Assizes, which were to be held in about s week. Defendant's Attorney at once replied that he must have a proper ted days' notice of trial. On the afternoon of the 6 h of July the case was brought on for trial before the two Judges and a jury in the absence of the defeudant : the plaintiff and his witnesses told their own story uncontradicted, and a verdict for $85 was given, thus reversing the decision of the County Court Judge. The defendant as soon as possible afterwards moved to set aside this verdict for irregularity on the ground among others that die notice of trial had not been given This motive was subsequently argued before the two Judges. The 'Civil Procedure Ordinance, 1869," says that the "Common Law Procedure Act, 1862," of the Supreme Court; and the 97th section of that Act says that "ten days' potice of trial shall be given in all cases."
The Judges said that law did not apply munication is much slower and more Hifficult than in England, and we have therefore no law as to notice of trial. D. fendant's Counsel contended that was a reason for lengthening rather than ships decided that in this case eight days' hotice was sufficient! It was then urged that at least he was entitled to a new trial, on the ground that the his knowledge, and that he believed he had a good defence on the merits. The Judges asked what evidence there was of this? It was replied, first, the County Court Judge decided in bis favor on bearing both sides of the case; and secondly, there was defendant's affidavit that he received no notice of trial at all and was not present at the hearing; that he was advised and believed he had a good defence on the merits; that he had aid plaintiff for all the work be ever did for h m, and that he did not owe him any money whatever; all which he was ready to prove. The Judges said no hardship or injustice had been shown, and refused to grant a new trial on any terms. Now, were there a proper Court of Appeal in this Province it seems scarcely probable that any three Judges could be brought together who would give a judgment apparently so antegonistic to law, justice and fair play. Both on Vancouver Island and on the Majuland the law and the practice has been in such cases to give ten days' notice of trial, and is not a few instances, we are assured, have parties been nonsuited in the uppe country because they failed to give the Saturday, 14th September, 1872, required notice; but in this case, for ressons best known to the Judges them-selves, law and practice seem to have been laid aside, the judgment of the County Court Judge overruled (although in the one case all the evidence on both sides was heard, while on the other one side only was heard), and a respectable citizen muleted in $81 50, which he was red to prove he did not owe, together with heavy costs; and in the face of these facts he was politely informed by the Judges that no hardship or injustice had been done him. It is a subject for gratulation that in the person of the Hon. John H. Gray we shall soon have a third Judge of the Supreme Court, and in the multitude of counsel there is come such decisions as that to which we have referred may be few and far be-

There is a petition being siged by the settle-rs in Fiji to her Majesty the Que n, praying for the recall of Mr March, the British Consul there. It is published in full in the Fiji Gazette and is literally bristling with charges against Mr March, although it is a rather long document. It accuses thim of having made his office an object of contempt; an obstruction to the public; that he resorts to favoritism: that he is haughly and imperious to those he comes in confact with; that he is vindictive; that he has injured and insulted those he has had dealings with; but he retains a regisry of and transactions there, but which is not allowed to be seen save on Saturdays; that his examination of harbor vessels has been in an arbitrary and partial manner; that temper he is continually involving bimself in unseemly quarrels; that there are many claims against him "which it is believed if there were any means of testing legally be would be compelled to pay, but which, from the absence heretofore of any judicatory power, he refuses to pay," etc. so that the "petitioners re pectul your firmly state that Mr. M rcb of Fiji, and they pray for his immediate re-

It was one enormous line from the palace to the pantheon of San Fernando, where an elegant catafalk or cenotaph had been erected receive the coffin before it was lowered into the amily vault. A tribune had been erected alongside, where numerous speeches were held; first by Jose Ma Igletias, the official orator, then by the deputy Silva, Chaeno, Gordillo, for the Mexican Marons; Vigil, for the Press; Baranda, for the Philharmonic Society; Moran, for the Medical Society, Escobido, Morales, Rosas Moreno, Mendoza, etc., and Mr. Nelson for the corps

In conclusion 21 cannon were find off anhe Provisional President dropped the nad tional colors over the grave, when the coffin had been deposited.

Only one misfortune marred this celebration; a woman was killed and a man wounded on firing one of the guns on the plaza.
On the same day on which Juarez died, the second son of the Emperor Furbide breathed is last, Don Angel de Iturbide, who never meddled in politics. This death reduces the yet living family of the Iturbides to Colonel Agustin Cosine de Iturbide, now living at Peris, the youngest son of the ex Emperor born two months after the unfortunate Agnstin I, was shot by order of Santa Anna in 1824. Further, his only daughter, Done Josefa, living at Bayonne, and two grandsons. Salvader de Iturbide y Maryan and Agustin de Iturbide y Green. In Iturbide, Maximilian and Juarez, Mexico has lost three men whose names figure in golden letters in Mexican history; though the latter two were opposed to one another during their lif-time. Justez felt certainly deeply afflicted that he con-idered it his duty to sign the death warrant. May God forgive him!
